Response to Amendment

1. This Office Action is in response to Request for Continued Examination (RCE) filed on August 23, 2005 and Amendment After Final filed on June 23, 2005.
2. Claims 1-10, 20 are pending.
3. Claims 11-19 are cancelled.
4. Applicant is noticed that claims 11-18 are not withdrawn, but cancelled as stated in Amendment filed on February 1, 2005.

Response to Arguments

5. Regarding claim 1, Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection with U.S. Patent No. 6,226,2000 by Eguchi et al.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Eguchi et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,226,2000) in view of Keays (U.S. Patent No. 6,614,695)

Regarding claim 1, Eguchi discloses, in FIG. 2, a memory device capable of controlling a characteristic parameter (word line voltage used during read operation of the memory array 128 in test mode), comprising:

Art Unit: 2824

a register controller (control register 120) for storing controlling data (various bit fields to control the word line supply voltage used during read operation of the memory array 128, such as VWLSEL 121, VT ENABLE 119, etc); and a parameter controller (programmable voltage generator 114) for receiving an input signal having a characteristic parameter (inherent voltage supply to programmable voltage generator 114, which includes voltage divider for example), for controlling the value of the characteristic parameter of the input signal according to the control data and for generating an output signal having the controlled characteristic parameter (various word line voltage values are obtained with the control of control register 120)

(See column 4 line 21 to column 5 line 52)

However, Eguchi is silent about the register controller being nonvolatile.

Keays discloses, in FIG. 1, a register controller 130 comprising a plurality of nonvolatile registers 130(a)-130(d) for controlling operations of a memory device (see column 6, lines 3-5).

Since Eguchi and Keays are both from the same field of endeavor, the purpose disclosed by Keays would have been recognized in the pertinent art of Eguchi.

It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to ones having ordinary skill in the art to use registers in either volatile or nonvolatile form, which depends on how they like the data being retained.

8. Claims 9-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Eguchi in view of Keays further in view of Komatsuzaki (PGPUB. 2004/0047172).

Art Unit: 2824

Eguchi in view of Keays disclose, as applied in prior rejection of claim 1, all claimed subject matter except further limitations as in claims 9-10, Both Eguchi and Keays disclose the memory device having non-volatile memory arrays.

Komatsuzaki discloses, in FIG. 12, a ferroelectric memory device having ferroelectric memory arrays comprising:

- a plurality of unit cells;

- a plurality of switches (for each unit cells); and

- bit lines comprising sub bit lines connected to the plurality of unit cells and a main bit line connected to the plurality of sub bit lines via the plurality of switches,

- wherein the plurality of switches is configured so that when a predetermined unit cell of the plurality of unit cells is accessed, only a switch for connecting a particular one of the plurality of sub bit lines connecting the predetermined unit cell to the main bit line is turned on, and other switches for connecting the rest of the plurality of sub bit lines to the main bit line are all turned off (corresponding to selected word line and sub bit line).

Since Eguchi, Keays and Komatsuzaki are all from the same field of endeavor, the purpose disclosed by Komatsuzaki would have been recognized in the pertinent art of Eguchi and Keays

It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to use FeRAM because FeRAM is also an applicable non-volatile memory type, which is subjected to self test.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claims 2-8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

10. Claim 20 is allowed.

11. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowance:

The prior art made of record and considered pertinent to the applicant's disclosure does not teach or suggest the claimed limitations. Eguchi, Keays and Roohparvar, taken individually or in combination, do not teach the claimed invention having the following limitations, in combination with the remaining claimed limitations:

- (i) a register command processor configured to receive a plurality of signals, to identify a mode by decoding the plurality of signals, and to read/write the control data from/to the plurality of registers according to the identified mode (as in claim 2); or
- (ii) all limitations as claimed in claim 20.
